A DECAYING TOWN.

The Visionary's Dream of Prescott.

WHAT JOHN SAYS IT WILL BE

And What a Disinterested Party Knows it Will Be--Out in the Cold.

We copy the subjoined article from the Tucson Star of March 28: "We read in the Enterprise of the 20th inst. the editor's idea of the future of Prescott. The following is part of what he says:

"A few years more will see her a city of 10,000 or 20,000 people--the terminus of several railroads and the pride of Arizona. Merchants will come here from Tucson, Tubac, Tamaacori, Florence, Maricopa Wells, Gila Bend, Phenix, and all the towns of Mohave and other counties to purchase supplies, see the sights, wrestle with the Tiger and get religion. Here will be a United States Mint, fine Capitol buildings, grand institutions of learning, a museum, gorgeous theaters, manufactories, an immense postoffice and other institutions which we will not now name."

"This is really a very glowing picture of the future, but we would like to know through what sort of glasses John sees all of this?

"We see Prescott in a very different light, and if the editor is not blind, he will see it from the same standpoint. Prescott's situation is unfavorable to a larger growth than it has at present; lying on the eastern slope of the Sierra Prieta, with all its freight coming from the west, it is impossible to reach the town except by passing around the northern part of the range and then driving south. The nearest point on the river is Aubrey City, a distance of nearly one hundred and fifty miles, and as the Sierra Prieta has only one break in its slope, where the Hassayampa leaves the range, it is not probable this distance will ever be shortened. On the eastern slope the range is broken by numerous strams, and it is easy of access to the greater portion of its mines. All of the mineral wealth of Yavapai lies to the south and east of Prescott, and must of necessity look for its outlet to the south.

"When the railroad reaches Maricopa Wells, the Peck, Tiptop, Tiger, and other mines of the Bradshaw Basin will be within a hundred miles of a railroad depot, and not a single pound of freight destined for these mines will ever see Prescott. In fact, the town of Prescott itself will go to Maricopa for its freight, should there be any to be sent, which is very doubtful. Yavapai will always be a rich country, but Prescott is not the coming town of that country. We have always thought the coming city of our sister county would be near the junction of the Agua Fria and Black Canon creeks; or possibly where the town of Gillette is now being built. If you were not carried away by your own day dreams, John, you could see that your business men appreciate these facts, and whenever they seek to establish a new house they go always to the south and east, but never to the north and west; some of them having gone so far south as to establish themselves at Phenix. We will admit your town is near the geographical center of the Territory, but you must admit that it is the northern limit of our population; unfortunately we have been north of Prescott and if you ever have a population in that direction, it will be after some new geological period.

"We hope you will take this in the spirit we have written; we want you to have a big city, but we can't allow you to lead others astray. If we have not converted you, and you still believe in the future of Prescott, do not have a museum established, as we should expect to see you in a glass case and labeled as a first-class specimen of the 'false prophet.'"

PEN AND SCISSORS.

A cable dispatch to the San Francisco Chronicle, dated March 25th, has the following in regard to the wreck of the Eurydice: In London and the provinces yesterday the weather was fine and bright until about half past three, when an almost general change ensued. Short and violent gusts of wind, accompanied by snow and dust storms of a very unusual character, brief as sudden, followed rapidly from nearly opposite points of the compass. At 4 in the afternoon, when off Dun nose and proceeding under sail, a squall struck the Eurydice and she capsized and sank immediately. The schooner Emma, passing the Eurydice at this time, rescued five persons.

An official list issued March 26th, by the Admiralty, shows that the Eurydice's officers and crew numbered 298 men. Seven, however, were possibly left at Barbados in prison. All accounts agree that there were also twenty to thirty passengers, officers, invalids, men whose time had expired, etc., on board.

James Coakley arrived in San Francisco about two weeks ago and leaves this morning for Arizona, with a determination never to return. On the night of his arrival he was attacked on Minna street, near second, by a quartette of ruffians, and coming in violent contact with a sand-bag, submitted very quietly to the loss of a watch and $5.50. Last evening at 7 o'clock, while walking in the rain along Hyde street, near Chestnut, he was assaulted by three robbers, two of whom had revolvers. One of them struck him with the muzzle on the cheek, leaving the imprint of the bore, and he was compelled to submit to the loss of $10 and a note for $215, signed by L. F. Loveland, stock broker, due on April 25th. A ring and a shirt stud were also taken.

On March 26th David Powell and James E. Betts of Payson, Utah, were caught in a snow slide at Peteetneet Canyon. The body of the latter has just been recovered severely bruised and lifeless, and over a hundred men are now engaged in searching for the missing man. There are no hopes of his being found alive.

It is stated that the Pope will select Cardinal Hohenlohe as the intermediary with the German Government. The Jesuits are negotiating for the purchase of a palace, with a view to removing their headquarters to Rome. The Pope holds aloof from the movement.

Mr. Morgan, who designed the new silver dollar, has been in this country but a short time. He came from England and was formerly employed in the Royal Mint at London.

Kosciusko, Miss., is a model place to emigrate to. Butter 15 cents a pound, rib beef at 4 cents, chickens 12 cents each, and eggs 8 cents per dozen are the latest quotations.

The baby hippopotamus, the only one ever brought alive to America, died at the New York Aquarium on Tuesday of consumption.

The London Times says American potatoes threaten to drive out the home-bred article.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

When the Apache roamed over Arizona transportation was high, travelling dangerous and the cost of living proportionately great. Now that peace is established prices have fallen, and the tendency is still downward. Of those who sell cheap E. Irvine & Co. have taken the lead in reducing prices ever since they first started in business. They believe that a merchant should be satisfied to make a reasonable profit. At this time they have a large stock on hand which they wish to clear out entirely, and in order to do so they will sell Groceries at the lowest market rates, and Dry Goods, Hardware, Tinware, etc., at a very small advance on cost. They have a large stock of Shirting, Sheetting and Prints. The latter they sell at ten cents a yard. Of chewing Tobaccos they have the celebrated Lorillard and Brunette brands, which beat the world. Of Smoking Tobaccos they have the Durham and Lone Jack. They sell the best of California or Arizona bacon at 28 cents per pound, and ladies' fine dress goods at one dollar per yard.
